May 2015 Newsletter

March Student of the Month

Our March Student of the month is a focused and determined young woman who is recognized by staff for her strong work ethic and her initiative to complete, to the very best of her ability, whatever task she undertakes.

Academic excellence is very important to this young woman. She was awarded the highest mark in both English and Social Studies at the 10 and 20 levels. She also received the highest mark in Financial Management in grade 10.

This young woman is very involved with school life at Kate Andrews. She has a great deal of artistic and musical talent which she has had the opportunity to express in a variety of ways. In preparation for our Fine Arts Night she spent 6 hours redoing the Art room walls, transforming the room into a well-organized venue to showcase student talent. Currently she is the leader of our yearbook committee and has spent over 100 hours taking and editing photos for this project. Her artistic creativity has been showcased on the cover of two of our yearbooks. She has played baritone sax in our band for the last four years and enjoyed travelling to perform with them at Disneyland and other venues. Mr. Hogg really appreciates the leadership she's shown in band this year, and particularly during their recent tour.

Sports are a passion of hers! She played libero for Kate Andrews' volleyball team in grades 9 and 10, doubles badminton in grades 9 and 10, and was part of our track team in grades 9 through 12. She has played soccer through the Coaldale Soccer Association in grades 9 through 12, winning a gold medal in Under 16 soccer and a bronze medal in Under 18 soccer.

Volunteering is important to our March Student of the Month. She has coached Under 8 soccer in Coaldale, worked at the Demolition Derby and Candy Parade, and taught Sunday School and Vacation Bible School at her church.

Although her life is very full and busy, this young woman also enjoys putting her creative talents to work on some hobbies. She has a passion for photography and has had photos, that she's taken, published in the newspaper on two occasions. Nail art is another area of expertise and enjoyment for her and she is a certified acrylic nail technician.

After graduation, our March Student of the Month plans to attend Lethbridge College in the Business program. Please congratulate our March Student of the Month, Karly Hertz, daughter of Darcy and Andrea Hertz.

The Kate Andrews drama department produced two one act plays, a comedy titled Four Little Words and a drama titled Fourteen Lines. While unintentional, choosing plays with the same number in the title has inspired these directors to continue the theme, so here are our four favourite moments working on this show:

1. Brent deciding to dance as the farmer from Four Little Words in the other play. Took us a moment to figure out what he was doing, but so funny once we did! The students demonstrated excellent comedic timing in the plays as they created characters who do very silly things.
2. Watching KAHS students mix, mingle, play games and laugh with kids from other schools at Shed the Mask, which is a drama festival held on April 24 at the University of Lethbridge. Shed the Mask also provided students with the opportunity to attend workshops put on by University and community theatre professionals. It was a great time, and we look forward to having students attend Shed the Mask 2016.
3. Listening to our actresses complain bitterly about the lovely dress selections Mr. Schilling made for them. At least this year he didn't buy anything in Extra-Extra Large! (Not to mention the Kenny Rogers shirt that made it in the show!) Part of the fun of producing plays is having students provide input into what they think their characters will wear. It's always enjoyable when students can exercise their creativity.
4. Our singing Alanis Morissette's opus "Wake Up" at the tops of our lungs for the cast during their scene change. Maybe not the most beautiful rendition, but maybe the most fun!

Thank you to our dedicated cast and crew! We have enjoyed working with you and watching you grow as performers. We performed in the One-Act Festival on the evening of April 29, also at the University, and represented KAHS very well. In the words of Jimmy, "When you're theatre crazy, you're good and crazy" – and we know it's true. The productions run the week of April 28 to May 01, tickets are $7.00 (or free with the KA Cash Card), and show time is at 7:00 pm.

Talking to Your Teen About Sex and Sexuality

For many parents, talking to their teen about sexuality and sexual health can be challenging and sometimes uncomfortable. There are several reasons why parents may feel this way. Some parents aren't confident in their knowledge of sexual health, some are unsure about what is appropriate to discuss with their teen, and some simply don't know how to start the conversation.

Alberta Health Services understands these challenges and has created the website teachingsexualhealth.ca to help you find the information you need to keep the conversation going with your teen. The Parent portal of the website offers the following:

- Tips on how to discuss relationships, sexuality and sexual health with your child.
- Explanations of why and how to talk to your teen about topics like sexual diversity and bullying.
- Outlines of the sexual health curriculum from grade 4 to grade 12.
- Webisodes (videos) that give examples of how to answer your teen's questions about sex and sexuality.
- Links to reliable resources and community agencies in your area of Alberta.

In school, your teen will learn about a wide range of topics; including the human reproductive process, the elements of a healthy relationship, the different types of birth control, and much more. Research on sexual health education has shown that teens with more knowledge about sexual health make more informed decisions, are less likely to take part in risky sexual behaviour, are at less risk of sexually transmitted infections and unwanted pregnancy, and often delay sexual intercourse.

Bring the conversation of sexual health into your home for the benefit of your teen's health and development. We encourage you to check out what teachingsexualhealth.ca has to offer!

Tips for a Safe Graduation Celebration

High school graduation is just around the corner. Graduation celebrations can be full of joy and excitement; however, they can also bring your teen face to face with risky situations such as underage drinking, impaired driving or riding with an impaired driver. In order to help your teen stay safe during grad, communication is crucial. Have an honest and supportive discussion with your teen about the risks. Clearly explain to them that it is illegal for teens younger than 18 to purchase, possess or consume alcohol. The following smart risk strategies can help your teen manage the risks during grad season, especially on the evening of grad celebrations.

- Look First. If your teen has their licence and is planning to drive, they should ensure that they are seated safely in their vehicle and can see the road clearly before driving. If they are allowed to drive at night, urge them to pay extra attention as the risk for crash increases after dark.
- Buckle Up. Your teen must always use their seatbelt and ensure that there are enough seatbelts for all passengers in the car. People who don't use seatbelts are three times more likely to be injured than people who use seatbelts.
- Drive Sober. Your teen must always be completely in control of their mind and body when driving. This means driving without any alcohol or drugs in their system, not being tired and not being distracted by their cell phones or passengers.
- Seek Help. Encourage and support your teen to seek help from trusted adults like you, when they feel that they are in an unsafe situation. Encourage them to call you at any time if they need a safe ride home or for any other reason. Always respond to your teens call for help.
